‘I will be recommending Intellect to other academics!’

‘A gem in these days of corporatized publishing’

‘Sophisticated, visually oriented academic ventures’

‘A really beautiful book’

‘The finished product is excellent’

‘I was impressed by the commitment to an unusual project’

Erudite and intriguing. Creative and compelling. Intellect’s books catalogue is packed with diverse titles which underscore our commitment to research and new approach to scholarly publishing. 2014 is a particularly exciting year, with books on Swedish crime drama, enviromental documentary cinema and the living dead. Luckily we are lightening things up with some Cuban street style, Audrey Hepburn fandom and films from Buenos Aires.

Intellect is enthusiastic about publishing in new and emerging areas, exploring topics that have not been covered before. We encourage a fresh take on things, the multidisciplinary and the previously unexplored. Our authors work at the intersection between art, culture and media studies. We think that working in these areas enhances scholarly work and brings a fresh perspective and new ideas.
EBOOKS
As part of Intellect’s commitment to innovation, all the books in this catalogue, as well as our backlist, are available as eBooks for libraries and individuals to purchase through a variety of platforms.

UNIVERSITY OF EXETER PRESS
Intellect has some exciting news, we are now working with University of Exeter Press. University of Exeter Press is one of only a handful of university presses in the UK and is recognized internationally for its excellence in humanities publishing and outstanding reputation for publishing books on theatre and performance studies and film history.
‘I found the experience with Intellect at every level to be ideal... very impressive and I communicate this to colleagues and hope we have another chance to create together.’
Shaun McNiff, Art as Research

At Intellect we pride ourselves on the service that we offer our authors. Intellect is committed to creating a platform for original work. We are an enthusiastic publishing team who welcome interesting and innovative proposals. Our dedicated in-house team work to make your book special; our production team who put your work through a rigorous peer review, copy-editing and proof-reading process, our designers who produce book covers, posters and flyers; and the marketing team who will work to spread the word about your book.

Your work is important to us, to find out how to publish with Intellect visit the ‘Publish with us’ section of our website, where you can download and complete the book proposal questionnaire, then send the completed form to: steve@intellectbooks.com.

We also welcome contributions to our journals, whether this is an article submission or the desire to start your own journal or guest-edit one of our existing ones.
INTELLECT JOURNALS

The bibliophiles amongst you may not be aware that Intellect also has an extensive catalogue of journals. These cover a range of topics, from our newest journals on fashion to some of our more established journals covering film, performing arts, video gaming, cultural studies, painting, writing, radio, architecture, media studies, comics, photography, soundtracks... we could go on and on and on. BOOK SERIES

‘The Fan Phenomena series is a brilliant introduction to fandom for those wishing to become acquainted with new fictional worlds, for fans wanting to delve deeper into their own preferred universes, and for people interested in the mechanics, relationships, and issues found in different fandoms.’ geekmom.com

Intellect’s Fan Phenomena book series is prompted by a growing appetite for books that tap into the fascination we have with what constitutes an iconic or cultish phenomenon and how a particular person, TV show, or film infiltrates their way into the public consciousness. Fan Phenomena explores particular examples of ‘fan culture’ and approaches the subject in an accessible manner aimed at both fans and those interested in the cultural and social aspects of these fascinating – and often unusual – ‘universes’.

- Academically informed but written for a general audience
- Will appeal to scholars, fans and critics
- Explores the enduring relationship between fans and franchise
- Packed with revealing interviews from all corners of the fan spectrum

The Roots of Modern Hollywood

The Persistence of Values in American Cinema, from the New Deal to the Present

Nick Smedley

In this insightful study of Hollywood cinema since 1969, film historian Nick Smedley traces the cultural and intellectual heritage of American films, showing how the more thoughtful recent cinema owes a profound debt to Hollywood’s traditions of liberalism, first articulated in the New Deal era. Although American cinema is not usually thought of as politically engaged, Smedley demonstrates how Hollywood can be seen as one of the most value-laden of all national cinemas.

Featuring important new interviews with four of Hollywood’s most influential directors, Michael Mann, Peter Weir, Paul Haggis, and Tony Gilroy, The Roots of Modern Hollywood is an incisive account of where Hollywood is today, and the path it has taken to get there.
‘Directory of World Cinema: American Hollywood is an attractive collection beyond the critical dissection of many of American cinema’s best-loved films. A coffee-table paperback, it includes a wealth of gorgeous production stills and other photographs’ Pop Matters

The Directory of World Cinema series aims to play a part in pushing intelligent, scholarly criticism beyond the academy. Each volume takes the form of a collection of reviews, longer essays and research resources, and is accompanied by film stills highlighting significant films and players.

- In-depth information, synopses, critiques and reviews from well-respected film scholars
- Spotlight articles highlight specific directors and actors
- Comprehensive filmography, and expansive recommended reading list
- ‘Test Your Knowledge’ questionnaire
- Fully illustrated with high-quality screen captures
‘As well as brief, illustrated pieces on the films and locations, each usefully plotted on a map, there are seven longer essays on themes such as queer culture, noir, and Alfred Hitchcock’s San Francisco. A great guide to the celluloid city.’

PD Smith, The Guardian

The World Film Locations series uses a predominantly visual approach to explore the relationship between cinema and the city. Be it an elaborate directorial love letter or a time-specific cultural setting, the city plays a central role in a multitude of films, and often acts as a vital character within narratives.

- Succinct articles and film reviews written by respected film scholars and writers
- Illustrated in full colour with maps of the city, screen captures from iconic films and present-day photographs of key locations
- Includes in-depth exploration of specific films, and insightful essays about themes, directors and key historical periods
- Doubles as a guidebook for cinephiles, travellers and tourists
Rhetoric of Modern Death in American Living Dead Films

Outi Hakola

Zombies, vampires, and mummies are frequent stars of American horror films. But what does their cinematic omnipresence and audiences' hunger for such films tell us about American views of death? Here, Outi Hakola investigates the ways in which American living-dead films have addressed death through different narrative and rhetorical solutions during the twentieth century. She focuses on films from the 1930s, including Dracula, The Mummy, and White Zombie, films of the 1950s and 1960s such as Night of the Living Dead and The Return of Dracula, as well as more recent fare like Bram Stoker's Dracula, The Mummy, and Resident Evil.

The Visceral Screen

Between the Cinemas of John Cassavetes and David Cronenberg

Robert Furze

Robert Furze argues the defining characteristic of John Cassavetes and David Cronenberg's respective approaches is that of 'visceral' cinema, a term that illustrates the anxiety these filmmakers provoke in their audiences. Cassavetes demonstrates this through disregard for plot structure and character coherence, while Cronenberg's focus is on graphic depictions of mutilation, extreme forms of bodily transformation, and violence.

Cassavetes and Cronenberg are established auteurs, but the elements of their films that appear to be barriers to their artistic status, for example, slipshod method and lingering violence or pre-digital special effects, are reassessed here as indicators of creativity. In this way, Furze encourages debates of what makes a film good or bad.
Lure of the Big Screen

Cinema in Rural Australia and the United Kingdom

Karina Aveyard

Lure of the Big Screen explores film exhibition and consumption in rural parts of the UK and Australia, where film theatres are often highly valued as spaces around which isolated communities can gather and interact. Going beyond national borders, this book examines how theatres in areas of social and economic decline are sustained by resourceful individuals and sub-commercial operating structures. Systematic analysis of cinemas in non-metropolitan locations has yielded an original five-tiered clustering model through which Karina Aveyard recognizes a range of types between large commercial multiplexes in stable regional centres and their smallest improvised counterparts in remote settlements.

(Re)viewing Creative, Critical and Commercial Practices in Contemporary Spanish Cinema

Edited by Duncan Wheeler and Fernando Canet

Formulated around a number of key thematic concerns, including new creative trends, the politics and practices of memory, auteurship, genre, and stardom in a transnational age – this reassessment of contemporary Spanish cinema from 1992 to 2012 brings leading academics from a broad range of disciplinary and geographical backgrounds into dialogue with critically and commercially successful practitioners to suggest the need to redefine the parameters of one of the world’s most creative national cinemas. This volume will appeal not only to students and scholars of Spanish films, but also to anyone with an interest in contemporary world cinema.
Cindy Sherman's Office Killer

Another Kind of Monster

Dahlia Schweitzer

One of the twentieth century's most significant artists, Cindy Sherman has quietly uprooted conventional understandings of portraiture and art, questioning everything from identity to feminism. Office Killer, Sherman's only film, plays a significant role both in Sherman's body of work and in American art in the late twentieth century. Dahlia Schweitzer explores the film on a variety of levels, combating head-on the art world's reluctance to discuss the movie and arguing instead that it is only through a close reading of the film that we can begin to appreciate the messages underlying all of Sherman's work.

The first book on this neglected piece of an esteemed artist's oeuvre, Cindy Sherman's Office Killer rescues the film from critical oblivion and situates it next to the artist's other iconic works.
Green Documentary

Environmental Documentary in the 21st Century

Helen Hughes

During the first decade of the twenty-first century, a stunning array of documentary films focusing on environmental issues, representing the world on the brink of ecological catastrophe, have been made. These have been met with critical and popular acclaim. This cohesive and accessible volume is the first book-length study of environmental documentary film-making, offering a coherent analysis of controversial and high-profile documentary films such as Gasland, An Inconvenient Truth, Manufactured Landscapes and The Cove. With analysis that includes the wider context of environmental documentary film-making, such as Modern Life and Sleep Furiously, about local rural communities in Britain and Europe, Green Documentary also contributes to the ongoing debate on representing the crisis.

Educating Film-Makers

Past, Present and Future

Duncan Petrie and Rod Stoneman

A timely consideration of both the history and the current challenges facing practice-based film training, Educating Film-Makers is the first book to examine the history, impact, and significance of film education in Britain, Europe, and the US. Film schools, the authors show, have historically focused on the cultivation of the film-maker as a cultural activist, artist, or intellectual – fostering creativity and innovation. But more recently a narrower approach has emerged, placing a new emphasis on technical training for the industry. The authors argue for a more imaginative engagement and understanding of the broader social importance of film and television, suggesting that critical analysis and production should be connected.
Real Objects in Unreal Situations

Modern Art in Fiction Films

Susan Felleman

Real Objects in Unreal Situations is a lucid account of a much-neglected subject in art and cinema studies: the material significance of the art object incorporated into the fiction film. By examining the historical, political, and personal realities that situate the artworks, Susan Felleman offers an incisive account of how they operate not as objects but as powerful players within the films, thereby exceeding the narrative function of mere props, copies, pastiches, or reproductions. The book consists of a series of interconnected case studies of movies, including Pride and Prejudice, The Trouble with Harry and The Player, ultimately showing that when real art works enter into fiction films, they embody themes and discourses in a way that other objects often cannot.

Swedish Cops

From Sjöwall & Wahlöö to Stieg Larsson

Michael Tapper

Believing the Swedish police narrative tradition to be part of the European history of ideas and culture, Tapper argues that the police emerged as heroes after World War II. Establishing themselves artistically and commercially at the forefront of the genre, Sjöwall and Wahlöö constructed a model for using the police novel as an instrument for ideological criticism of the social democratic government and its welfare state project. With varying political affiliations, their model has been adapted by authors such as Leif G. W. Persson, Jan Guillou, Henning Mankell, Håkan Nesser, Anders Roslund and Borge Hellström, and Stieg Larsson, and in film series such as Beck and Wallander. The first book of its kind about Swedish crime fiction, Swedish Cops is just as thrilling as the novels and films it analyses.

PERFORMING ARTS
The Student Actor Prepares

Acting for Life

Gai Jones

The Student Actor Prepares is a practical, interactive approach to a student actor’s journey. Each chapter includes acting principles, their importance to the process, and workbook entries for emotional work, script analysis, and applications to the study of theatre. Topics cover a brief history of the art of acting and how the study of acting can be an advantage in numerous occupations; an actor’s discovery of emotional work; movement and mime practices for the actor; vocal practices for the actor; solo improvisational study; script analysis for the individual actor; rehearsal tips; monologue work; original solo work; audition information; working with an acting partner or in a production; acting resources; and research topics.

Part of the Theatre in Education series

A series of handbooks and textbooks written by teachers for teachers. Encouraging theatre teachers to experiment with form, shape and content, each book in this exciting new series includes practical classroom exercises and lesson plans. The series advocates socially responsible theatre-teaching and student-centred learning. It also aims to empower students to see themselves as responsible agents.
Practising the Real on the Contemporary Stage

José Antonio Sánchez
Translated by Charlie Allwood

An analysis of reality and ‘the real’ as presented in contemporary artistic creation, Practising the Real on the Contemporary Stage examines the responses given by performing arts to the importance placed on reality beyond representation. This book proposes four historic itineraries defined by the ways in which the issue of the real is addressed: the representation of the visible reality and its paradoxes, the place of the real on the lived body, the limits placed on representation by experiences of pain and death, and those practices that denounce the real. Practising the Real on the Contemporary Stage will be warmly welcomed by scholars of aesthetics and contemporary artistic practice.

Integrative Alexander Technique Practice for Performing Artists

Onstage Synergy
Cathy Madden

An educational method used to improve performance, the Alexander technique teaches people to replace unnecessary muscular and mental effort with consciously coordinated responses, maximizing effectiveness while also relieving, if necessary, any chronic stiffness or stress. Integrative Alexander Technique Practice for Performing Artists brings together the empirical research of Cathy Madden, a teacher and coach with more than thirty-five years of experience with the technique. She addresses common concerns, such as concentration, relaxation, discipline specific techniques, warm-ups, performer/audience relationships, stage fright, and critical responses, and explores the role of the senses, emotions, learned behavior, human consciousness studies, and neuroscience in the application of the techniques.
Body and Mind in Motion

Dance and Neuroscience in Conversation
Glenna Batson with Margaret Wilson

Western contemporary dance and body-mind education have engaged in a pas de deux for more than four decades. The rich interchange of somatics and dance has altered both fields, but scholarship that substantiates these ideas through the findings of twentieth-century scientific advances has been missing. This book fills that gap and brings to light contemporary discoveries of neuroscience and somatic education as they relate to dance. Drawing from the burgeoning field of ‘embodiment’, itself an idea at the intersection of the sciences, humanities, arts, and technologies, Body and Mind in Motion highlights the relevance of somatic education within dance education, dance science, and body-mind studies.

Dance, Somatics and Spiritualities

Contemporary Sacred Narratives
Edited by Amanda Williamson, Glenna Batson, Sarah Whatley, and Rebecca Weber

This anthology negotiates the influential yet silent educational presence of spiritualities within the field of somatic movement dance education. The expressive and integral nature of spiritual experience remains academically undefined and peripheral to our understanding of creative practice. Lack of theoretical rigour, as well as a lack of a substantive definitional and methodological competency, has resulted in spirituality being marginalized. To date, important questions about how diverse spiritualities shape professional practice in the somatic movement and dance arts remain unanswered. This cutting-edge collection fills that void, providing greater creative and discursive clarity.
Reverberations across Small-Scale British Theatre

Politics, Aesthetics and Forms

Edited by Patrick Duggan and Victor I. Ukaegbu

Between 1960 and 2010, a new generation of British avant-garde theatre companies, directors, designers, and performers emerged. Some of these companies and individuals have endured to become part of theatre history while others have disappeared from the scene, mutated into new forms, or become part of the establishment. Reverberations across Small-Scale British Theatre at long last puts these small-scale British theatre companies and personalities in the scholarly spotlight. By questioning what ‘Britishness’ meant in relation to the small-scale work of these practitioners, contributors articulate how it is reflected in the goals, manifestos, and aesthetics of these companies.

The Reflexive Teaching Artist

Collected Wisdom from the Drama/Theatre Field

Edited by Kathryn Dawson and Daniel A. Kelin II

Writing from the dual perspectives of artist and educator, Kathryn Dawson and Daniel A. Kelin II raise fundamental questions about the complex functions of the teaching artist in school, community, and professional theatre settings. Contributions to the text explore a series of foundational concepts, including intentionality, quality, artistic perspective, assessment, and praxis, all used as a reflective framework to illuminate case studies from a wide range of teaching artist practice.

Readers are also offered questions to guide their practical application and charts to complete. The editors examine the practice of teaching in, through, and about drama and theatre.
VISUAL ARTS
Theater of War

Edited by Meredith Davenport

For five years, Meredith Davenport photographed and interviewed men who play live-action games based on contemporary conflicts, such as a recreation of the hunt for Osama Bin Laden that took place on a campground in Northern Virginia. Her images speak about the way conflict penetrates a culture sheltered from the horrors of war.

Bringing together a series of two dozen photographs with essays analysing the influence of the media, particularly photographs and video, on culture at large, Theater of War is a unique look at the influence of contemporary conflicts on popular culture. Created and illustrated by an experienced photojournalist who has covered a variety of human rights issues worldwide, this book is an essential addition to the library of anyone interested in the confluence of war and media.

Meredith Davenport is an assistant professor at the Rochester Institute of Technology. As a freelance photojournalist, she has covered human rights issues around the world, ranging from the rise of Islamic extremism in Bangladesh for the New York Times Magazine to Hugo Chavez’s impact on Venezuela for National Geographic.
Photography, Narrative, Time

Imaging our Forensic Imagination

Greg Battye

Providing a wide-ranging account of the narrative properties of photographs, Greg Battye focuses on the storytelling power of a single image, rather than the sequence. Drawing on ideas from painting, drawing, film, video, and multimedia, he applies contemporary research and theories drawn from cognitive science and psychology to the analysis of photographs. Using genuine forensic photographs of crime scenes and accidents, the book mines human drama and historical and sociological authenticity to argue for the centrality of the perception and representation of time in photographic narrativity.

Postcards from the Road

Robert Frank’s ‘The Americans’

Jonathan Day

Walker Evans said in his 1958 introduction to Robert Frank’s The Americans, ‘For the thousandth time, it must be said that pictures speak for themselves, wordlessly, visually, or they fail’. It seems appropriate then, and not a little overdue, that Jonathan Day has created a book that expounds, explores, and examines Frank’s work pictorially.

Taking Frank’s iconic images as his point of reference, Day shot new photographs that commented on the road and contemporary America. Here, these images are paired with critical commentary that details the aspects of the work that are visually expounded and explained in Day’s complementary images. A visual entryway to the photographs and themes of this iconic book in the history of photography, Postcards from the Road represents an innovative, carefully considered departure from standard photographic textbooks.
TV Museum

Contemporary Art and the Age of Television

Maeve Connolly

TV Museum takes as its subject the complex and shifting relationship between television and contemporary art. Informed by theories and histories of art and media since the 1950s, this book charts the changing status of television as cultural form, object of critique, and site of artistic invention. Through close readings of artworks, exhibitions, and institutional practices in diverse cultural and political contexts, Connolly demonstrates television's continued importance for contemporary artists and curators seeking to question the formation and future of the public sphere.

Lavishly illustrated and with in-depth discussion of over fifty canonical and contemporary artworks, TV Museum offers a new approach to the analysis of television's place within contemporary art and culture.

Representations of Working in Arts Education

Stories of Learning and Teaching

Narelle Lemon, Susanne Garvis, and Christopher Klopper

Arts education provides students with opportunities to build knowledge and skills in self-expression, imagination, creative and collaborative problem solving, and creation of shared meanings. Engagement in arts education has also been said to positively affect overall academic achievement and development of empathy towards others. This book provides key insights from stakeholders across the teaching and learning spectrum and offers examples of pedagogical practice to those interested in facilitating arts education.

- Provides insights from all key stakeholders in arts education in one book
- First book to use EITM Matrix to evaluate arts education in Australian schools
- Provides examples of teaching practice to those interested in facilitating arts education
Design for Business

Volume 2

Edited by Gjoko Muratovski

One of very few books to bring together business and design, this collection features essays on topics ranging from branding and sustainability to business-driven design education. The centerpiece of the volume is an essay on simplicity in design by Per Mollerup, a distinguished Scandinavian designer, professor, and author. Bolstering this are transcripts of two interviews with the former global art director for Nike for the 2012 London Olympics, paired with a paper on Nike’s design and marketing strategies for the Olympic Games. Other features include a transcript of an interview with Dan Formosa, a New York–based design consultant, design researcher, and founding member of the iconic Smart Design Studio, a study of greenwashing, sustainability, and communication design, and a case study on the design partnership between the hearing aid company BHS and the design studio Designworks that has revolutionised a healthcare sector.

Artist-Scholar

Reflections on Writing and Research, Second Edition

G. James Daichendt

Research is a concept that is not typically associated with the field of art. However, more and more art-based MFA and PhD programs use the term to describe and categorize the work of graduate-level artist-students and faculty. G. James Daichendt proposes a different way of characterizing the professional artist in the academy.

Artist-Scholar presents a broad foundation for inquiry in the arts and redefines how artists may approach research in the academic context. The author proposes that the concepts of scholarship, understanding, and writing better define the diverse practices of artists in and out of the academy. Drawing on the artwork, practices, and writings of modern and contemporary artists, including Banksy, Jeff Koons, and Shepard Fairey, among others, this book brings the professional artist into the scholarship and research dialogue at long last.
Fashion and Ethics

Critical Studies in Fashion & Beauty: Volume II

Edited by Efrat Tseëlon

Fashion and Ethics focuses on issues of power, social positioning, and social practice – among creators, producers, wearers, and consumers of fashion. Fashion and Ethics applies its uncompromising scrutiny to areas as diverse as ethical fashion’s self-appointed morality, the first-world presumption that the environment should take priority over human development, the contradictions inherent in negotiating ethical and commercial ends of a high-end fashion label, consumers’ motives for buying green, and ethical culinary trends, exploitation of fashion models, and the cruelty involved in the procurement of animal skin and fur for use in fashion. In total, the volume forces readers to confront whether ethics in fashion is a genuine change of mindset, or just a charade of good intentions.

Fashion and Ethics showcases the articles from the second volume of Intellect’s journal Critical Studies in Fashion & Beauty.

Fashion as Masquerade

Critical Studies in Fashion & Beauty: Volume III

Edited by Efrat Tseëlon, Laini Burton, and Diana Crane

Fashion as Masquerade focuses on issues of power, social positioning, ideologies, and practices within the web of relationships between creators, producers, practitioners, and end-users of fashion.

Masking has a rich history but it is also a metaphor for fashion itself. Fashion is a mask that constructs or subverts meanings. Exploring the contemporary meanings of masks, masking, and masquerade, essays here consider masking in its various forms as a conscious or unconscious form of behaviour. Masking is revealed as a strategy for reclaiming control over the construction of meanings, and creating a space for resistance that is independent of either social prescriptions or the controlling gaze.

Fashion as Masquerade showcases the articles from the third volume of Intellect’s journal Critical Studies in Fashion & Beauty.
Havana Street Style

Conner Gorry and Gabriel Solomons
With photographs by Martin Tompkins

Addressing the interplay between the development of fashion centers across the world and their relationship to consumption and street style in both local and global contexts, the books in the Street Style series aim to record emerging fashion capitals and their relationship to the physical landscapes of the street. By examining how particular ecologies of fashion are connected to the formation of gender, class, and generational identities, this series establishes a new methodology for recording and understanding identity and its connection to style.

Havana Street Style is the first book that explores and reveals the relationship between culture, city, and street fashion in Cuba’s capital. Matching visual ethnography with critical analysis, the book documents a unique street style few outside Cuba have yet experienced.

Sydney Street Style

Toni Johnson-Woods, Vicki Karaminas, Justine Taylor
With photographs by Kate Disher-Quill

Geographically isolated from the fashion hubs of Paris and New York, Australia may not yet be synonymous with style. But as it moves away from the beach look that it is usually associated with and adopts haute couture, Australia is emerging as a new fashion hot spot.

Though not the political capital of Australia, Sydney is the style hub and epicentre of the country’s fashion evolution. Sydney Street Style depicts the style of this less-explored fashion capital. Beautifully assembled and packed with full-colour photos of the stylish and eclectic residents of Sydney, this book will be a welcome addition to the library of anyone passionate about fashion or culturally curious.
Honolulu Street Style

Malie Moran, Attila Pohlmann and Andrew Reilly
With photographs by Attila Pohlmann

Hawai‘i is one of the most ethnically and racially diverse places in the world due to its central location in the Pacific. Situated at the crossroads of different cultures, Honolulu has a style all of its own. Honolulu Street Style captures this unique approach as it demonstrates how global trends are transformed by stylish Honolulu denizens to give them a unique, local look. Divided into chapters on head, hair, hats, accessories and beachwear, the book features the styles of people encountered on the street in many different neighbourhoods, with an essay on the history and clothing of Hawai‘i as a whole.

A highly visual book with full colour street style photography, Honolulu Street Style will be a landmark publication in the study of place and style.

The Street Style series explores and reveals the relationship between culture, the city, and the street fashion. Each volume is a collaboration between a street style photographer and an author, focusing on a particular city and the relationship between street style and the culture of that city. Style imbues people with an individual identity but collectively there is a sense of common culture in a community, a city, or a country.

Architecture and the Virtual

Marta Jecu

Architecture and the Virtual is a study of architecture as it is reflected in the work of seven contemporary artists working with the tools of our post-digital age. The book maps the convergence of virtual space and contemporary conceptual art and is an anthropological exploration of artists who deal with transformable space and work through analogue means of image production. Marta Jecu builds her inquiry around interviews with artists and curators in order to explore how these works create the experience of the virtual in architecture. Performativity and neo-conceptualism play important roles in this process and in the efficiency with which these works act in the social space.

Some Wear Leather, Some Wear Lace

A Worldwide Compendium of Postpunk and Goth in the 1980s

Andi Harriman and Marloes Bontje

Some Wear Leather, Some Wear Lace is a visual and oral history of the first decade of the scene known variously as punks, new romantics, new wavers, the bats, or the morbids. Featuring interviews with both the performers and the audience to capture the community on and off stage, the book places personal snapshots alongside professional photography to reveal a unique range of fashions, bands, and scenes.

A book about the music, the individual, and the creativity of a worldwide community rather than theoretical definitions of a subculture, Some Wear Leather, Some Wear Lace considers a subject not often covered by academic books. Whether you were part of the scene or are just fascinated by different modes of expression, this book will transport you to another time and place.
Global Fashion Brands

Style, Luxury and History

Edited by Joseph H. Hancock II, Gjoko Muratovski, Veronica Manlow and Anne Peirson-Smith

Fashion branding is more than just advertising. It helps to encourage the purchase and repurchase of consumer goods from the same company. While historically, fashion branding has primarily focused on consumption and purchasing decisions, recent scholarship suggests that branding is a process that needs to be analysed from a style, luxury, and historical popular culture view using critical, ethnographic, individualistic, or interpretive methods.

This collection explores the meaning behind fashion branding in the context of the contested power relations underpinning the production, marketing, and consumption of global style and fashion.

Global Fashion Brands is a collection of chapters inspired by the journal Fashion, Style & Popular Culture with a focus on luxury branding. Electronic versions of the chapters are hosted online by Ingenta Connect for individual purchase and are offered free to online subscribers of Fashion, Style & Popular Culture. To subscribe visit Intellect’s website.

Fashion and War in Popular Culture

Edited by Denise N. Rall

The premier text to illustrate the impact of war on textiles, costume, art and design, Fashion and War in Popular Culture includes a series of commentaries on the impact of military dress in the airline industry, in illustrated wartime comics, and even considers today’s muscled soldier’s body as a new type of uniform. Elsewhere, the effects of conquest introduce a new set of postcolonial aesthetics as military and colonial regimes disrupt local textile production and garment making. It is argued that textiles and fashion are important because they reflect a core practice, one that bridges textile artists and designers in an expressive, creative and deeply physical way to matters of cultural significance. And the book concludes by calling the very mode of ‘military chic’ into ethical question.

Scholars of fashion design and theory and historians of fashion will welcome this volume.
Canadian Wetlands

Places and People

Rod Giblett

In Canadian Wetlands, Rod Giblett reads the Canadian canon against the grain, critiquing popular representations of wetlands and proposing alternatives by highlighting the work of recent and contemporary Canadian authors, such as Douglas Lochhead and Harry Thurston, and by entering into dialogue with American writers. The book will engender mutual respect between researchers for the contribution that different disciplinary approaches can and do make to the study and conservation of wetlands internationally.

Money Talks

Media, Markets, Crisis

Edited by Graham Murdock and Jostein Gripsrud

Money Talks explores the ways the financial concepts of money and capital are understood and talked about by a range of people, from traders to ordinary investors, and how these accounts are framed and represented across a range of media. This collection brings together leading writers and emerging researchers to demonstrate how work in media and cultural studies can contribute to debates around the meanings of money, the operations of capital, and the nature of the current crisis. Drawing on a range of work from across disciplines, Money Talks offers a provocative and path-breaking demonstration of the value of incorporating approaches from media and cultural studies into an understanding of economic issues.
With Nature

Nature Philosophy as Poetics through Schelling, Heidegger, Benjamin and Nancy

Warwick Mules

With Nature provides new ways to think about our relationship with nature in today’s technologically mediated culture. Warwick Mules makes original connections with German critical philosophy and French post-structuralism in order to examine the effects of technology on our interactions with the natural world. In so doing, the author proposes a new way of thinking about the eco-self in terms of a careful sharing of the world with both human and non-human beings. With Nature ultimately argues for a poetics of everyday life that affirms the place of the human-nature relation as a creative and productive site for ecological self-renewal and redirection.

The British Media and Bloody Sunday

Greg McLaughlin and Stephen Baker
With a foreword by Eamonn McCann

On Bloody Sunday, January 30, 1972, British paratroopers killed thirteen innocent men in Derry. It was one of the most controversial events in the history of the Northern Ireland conflict and also one of the most mediated. The horror was recorded in newspapers and photographs, on TV news and current affairs, and in film and TV drama. The British Media and Bloody Sunday identifies two countervailing impulses in media coverage of Bloody Sunday and its legacy: an urge in the press to rescue the reputation of the British Army versus a troubled conscience in TV current affairs about what was done in Britain’s name. It suggests a complex set of representations, one that says less about the conflict in Ireland than it does about Britain, with its loss of empire and its crisis of national identity.

Engaging with Reality

Documentary and Globalization

Ib Bondebjerg

As our world becomes more globalized, documentary filmmaking and television tell increasingly cosmopolitan stories of the world’s social, political, and cultural situation. Ib Bondebjerg examines how global challenges are reflected and represented in documentaries from the United States, the United Kingdom, and Scandinavia after 2001. The documentaries discussed deal with the War on Terror, the globalization of politics, migration, the multicultural challenge, and climate change.

Engaging with Reality is framed by theories of globalization and delves into the development of a new global media culture. It discusses theories of documentary genres and their social and cultural functions, cosmopolitanism and the role and forms of documentary in a new digital and global media culture. It will be essential reading for those looking to better understand documentary and the new transnational approach to modern media.

National Conversations

Public Service Media and Cultural Diversity in Europe

Edited by Karina Horsti, Gunilla Hultén and Gavan Titley

Public service broadcasting is in the process of evolving into ‘public service media’ as a response to the challenges of digitalization, intensive competition, and financial vulnerability. While many commentators regard public service as being in transition, a central dimension of its mission, to integrate and unify the nation while respecting and representing plurality, is being re-emphasized and re-legitimated in a political climate where the politics of migration and cultural diversity loom large in public debate. Through a series of thematic chapters and in-depth national case studies, National Conversations examines the reshaping of public service media and the concomitant development of new guiding discourses, policies, and program practices for addressing difference and lived multiculturalism in Europe.
Wiener Chic

A Locational History of Vienna Fashion

Susan Ingram and Markus Reisenleitner

Vienna may not be a city of fashion per se, but it is a fashionable city, a city that historically has been structured by changing fashions and fashionable appearances, by the tortured yet glittering façades of personalities and buildings. By focusing on cinematic and institutional mediations of fashion and style, Wiener Chic explores and re-narrates the historical formation of Vienna’s urban imaginary. It takes the material dimension of urban culture seriously and mobilizes fashion as a structure of visibility that can direct the critical gaze at revealing aspects of the urban fabric from façades to festivals.

‘A masterpiece which isn’t afraid to own up to its scholarly rigor. Equally satisfying to the coffee table book skimmer as it will be to the serious student of fashion and history.’

Amie Zimmer, Parson’s School of Design magazine

‘I really did enjoy this book! It was a truly engaging and well-written look at various aesthetic aspects of Viennese life, and laid a foundation for a very interesting future discussion on fashion and the spaces it inhabits, fills, or is lacking.’

Worn Through, Arianna Funk

Double Exposures

By Manuel Vason (edited by David Evans)

Double Exposures is a new collaborative venture between Manuel Vason and forty of the most visually arresting artists working with performance in the UK. Artists who had previously worked with Vason were invited to create two images, one of their own practice and another, where they took on the role of the photographer, shaping an image with Vason’s body. A second group of new collaborators were invited to create a performance, which could be captured in two photographs. All the images exist as doubles – pairs – diptychs.

Ten years after his first, groundbreaking book, Exposures, Vason has produced another extraordinary body of work, which sets out new ways of bridging performance and photography.
